The wreckage of an unidentified cargo ship played a central role in the series as The Pogues' hangout. This atmospheric setting can be found on Snow's Cut Beach on the southern end of Kure Beach. The real-life shipwreck is accessible during low tide, allowing visitors to explore and capture memorable shots.

2. The Camerons' Mansion: John B. Routledge House

The lavish abode of the wealthy Camerons is filmed at the John B. Routledge House in Wilmington, North Carolina. This grand Victorian mansion, built in 1859, boasts a striking white exterior and opulent interiors. Admire its architectural beauty from afar or inquire about private tours to step into the world of the show's elite characters.

3. Figuerola's Hotel: Bald Head Island Conservancy

The mysterious and secluded Figuerola's Hotel is depicted by the Bald Head Island Conservancy's Palmetto Hall and Marsh Harbour Inn. Located on the pristine shores of Bald Head Island, accessible only by ferry, this idyllic setting provides a perfect escape from the bustling world. Stroll along the beaches, explore the maritime forest, and imagine the secrets hidden within the walls of Figuerola's.

4. JJ's Surf Spot: Kure Beach Pier

JJ's adrenaline-pumping surfing scenes are set at the iconic Kure Beach Pier, a beloved landmark on the Outer Banks. This historic pier stretches 780 feet over the Atlantic Ocean, offering panoramic views and a thrilling spot for surfers to catch some waves. Visitors can walk the length of the pier, soak up the seaside atmosphere, and envision JJ riding the waves with effortless style.

5. The Church: Methodist Episcopal Church

The small church where Sarah and John B. seek refuge is brought to life by the Methodist Episcopal Church in Southport, North Carolina. This charming 1853 building features neo-Gothic architecture and a quaint steeple, adding a touch of historic ambiance to the series' key moments. Explore the church's interior and exterior to fully immerse yourself in the show's most pivotal scenes.

6. Tannyhill House: Cape Fear Lighthouse

The mysterious Tannyhill House, said to be haunted by Sarah's long-lost father, is depicted by the iconic Cape Fear Lighthouse on Bald Head Island. This towering 153-foot lighthouse, built in 1817, stands as a sentinel guarding the entrance to the Cape Fear River. Visitors can climb its spiral staircase to the top for stunning views or simply admire its architectural majesty from a distance.

7. Sarah Cameron's Secret Beach: Rachel Carson National Estuarine Research Reserve

The secluded beach where Sarah escapes to find solace is filmed at the Rachel Carson National Estuarine Research Reserve on North Core Banks Island. This pristine sanctuary encompasses a diverse range of habitats, including maritime forests, salt marshes, and undeveloped beaches. Escape into the tranquility of this beautiful setting, where Sarah found moments of peace amidst the show's high-stakes drama.

8. The Beach: Oak Island

The sweeping beaches that serve as the backdrop for many of the series' most memorable moments are located on Oak Island, a small island town just south of Wilmington. Oak Island boasts miles of wide, sandy beaches, perfect for swimming, sunbathing, and indulging in all the beachside activities enjoyed by the Pogues. Spend a day or two on Oak Island to soak up the sun and imagine yourself part of the show's adventurous crew.

For fans of "Outer Banks," embarking on a pilgrimage to the show's filming locations is a unique and unforgettable experience. From the atmospheric setting of The Wreck to the grandeur of the Cameron's mansion, each location offers a tangible connection to the world of the Pogues. Whether you're an avid surfer seeking JJ's perfect waves or a history buff exploring the Cape Fear Lighthouse, the Outer Banks provides a wealth of opportunities to immerse yourself in the show's thrilling narrative. Plan your trip carefully, revel in the beauty of these iconic places, and let the spirit of "Outer Banks" ignite your own adventures on the North Carolina coast.
