Williams wrote the song in 2018 after he had been sober for several months. He had been struggling with addiction for years, and he had hit rock bottom. He was homeless, broke, and he had lost everything. But he knew that he needed to change his life, and he entered rehab.

In rehab, Williams found the help and support that he needed to get sober. He also found a new sense of purpose in his life. He began writing songs about his experiences with addiction and recovery, and he started performing them at local open mics.

In 2019, Williams released his debut album, Glasshouse Children. The album was a critical and commercial success, and it helped to raise awareness of the struggles that people with addiction face. Williams has since become a vocal advocate for addiction recovery, and he has used his platform to help others who are struggling.

Free As In Freedom is a song about hope and redemption. It is a song about the power of recovery, and it is a song about the importance of never giving up on yourself. The song has resonated with people all over the world, and it has helped to inspire countless people to seek help for addiction and mental health issues.
